BioReliance is a leading Contract Service Organization (CSO) providing nonclinical testing, development and manufacturing services for biologics to biotechnology and pharmaceutical companies worldwide. BioReliance provides three types of contract services - testing, development and manufacturing - which span the product cycle from early preclinical development through licensed production.

For established biotechnology and pharmaceutical companies, outsourcing to BioReliance streamlines product development and reduces time to market. The Corporation also supports early stage companies who may lack the staff, expertise and financial resources to conduct many aspects of product development in-house. BioReliance's services and broad experience provide all of its clients with a variable cost alternative to the fixed costs associated with internal biologic development and manufacture.
