VeraChem LLC was founded in 2000 to advance the state of the art in computer-aided drug-discovery by creating software that is well-grounded in science and is outfitted with high quality graphical user interfaces designed by and for scientists. VeraChem's offices are located in Germantown, MD, in the heart of the I-270 Technology Corridor.

Scientific Software and Algorithms

VeraChem software is constructed with reusable software modules that speed the creation of applications tailored for specific tasks in computational chemistry. In addition to routine functionalities for file I/O, data management, process control, etc., our proprietary toolkit provides a range of scientific modeling functions. These include ligand-protein docking and scoring, fast calculation of accurate partial atomic charges for drug-like compounds, computation of energies and forces with empirical force fields such as AMBER, GAFF, and DREIDING, automatic generation of alternate resonance forms of drug-like compounds, conformational search with the powerful Tork algorithm, and automatic detection of topological and 3D molecular symmetries.
